LIGHT AND POWER PLANTS.

GROTON, CONN.—Site will be secured for proposed municipal electric plant. It is planned to have the plant in operation by April 15, 1906.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—T. Cary Hutchinson, Chn. of Commission appointed by Mayor George B. McClellan to prepare plan for municipally owned and operated city lighting plants has submitted report on Brooklyn and Queens Boroughs to Board of Estimate. For Brooklyn and Queens the commission favors a site at Nott Ave., Hunter's Point, where it proposes to establish a plant of the same size and capacity as already planned for Manhattan and the Bronx. The report provides for alternate plans. The first would provide for all the present electric lights in the parks, streets, and public buildings of the two boroughs, leaving the present gas lamps in those places undisturbed. The alternate proposition would, in addition, replace all the present gas lamps in the boroughs with electric lamps. Under the first plan the cost to the city would be $6,138,000 for the establishment of the plant, while the cost under the second plan would reach $9,485,000. This is comparatively a much greater cost than the establishment of the Manhattan and Bronx plant, which, under the first proposition, will cost approximately $4,000,000, and under the second proposition approximately $7,000,000. It is also figured that it will cost $100,000 a year more to run the Brooklyn and Queens plant than it now costs the city to light the two boroughs by contract with the present lighting companies. This is because the plans of the Hutchinson commission provide for placing underground all wires in Brooklyn and Queens. The report for Borough of Manhattan regarding municipal lighting plant, including land, buildings and all equipment for a central station, of a capacity of 15,000 kilowatts and a distributing system designed to supply 15,000 arc lights and [illegible],000 16-c. p. incandescent lights, placed the total cost at $7,567,000. The total annual operating and fixed charges, including interest at 3.5 per cent. depreciation and all operating expenses, will be, a year, $1,269,0[illegible]

Johnson, and a company to undertake the enterprise has been organized in Parral, with a capitalization of $1,500,000. The members of the company are Messrs. Johnson, Ivonsky, Felipe Ortiz, Flyn and Lic. Joaquin Cortazar, Jr. The company may be addressed at Jiminez, Chih.

WATER AND SEWERAGE.—Parral, Chih. —It has been definitely decided to construct a sewerage system and water-works in the city of Parral. The plans for the works have been prepared by Nelson Rhodes, Jr., city of Chihuahua. The estimated cost of the works is $350,000. The governor of the state, Enrique Creel, city of Chihuahua, will award the contracts for construction, which he hopes to let within 60 days, so as to commence work in January.

DAM AND IRRIGATION.—San Pedro, Sonora.—Carlos Garza Cortina, City of Mexico, representing La Paz Agricultural Co., has petitioned the Department of Fomento for a concession for the company, permitting the diversion of 4,000 liters of water per second, from the Mayo River, State of Sonora, for irrigation. It is proposed to erect a dam at Cumbroche, near the town of San Pedro.

ELECTRIC PLANT.—Zacatecas.—It is announced that the Compania Electrica de Zacatecas, which was organized for the purpose of installing an electric light and power plant in the city of Zacatecas, has awarded the contract for the entire installation to the SCHONNDUBE & NEUGEBAUER CO., City of Mexico. The electrical machinery and equipment will be manufactured by the Allgemeine Electrical Co., of Berlin, Germany. The plant will be equipped with gas engines of about 200 HP. each, to be built by the Koerting Works of Hanover. The powerhouse will be located about a mile from the center of the city.

SUGAR REFINERY.—Santa Lucrecia, Vera Cruz.—Alonza Mariscal y Pina, the representative of the Tabasco Land & Development Co., has applied to the Department of Fomento for a concession for the establishment of a sugar refinery in the canton of Minatitlan, Vera Cruz, near the town of Santa Lucrecia. In addition to the refinery the company contemplates the erection of sugar mills, on a more extensive scale than heretofore established in Mexico, the investment, in mills alone, being estimated at $1,500,000, gold, the initial capacity of the mill to be 1,000 tons a day, to be increased, eventually, to 3,000 tons. The company will also construct wagon roads, railways, telegraph and telephone lines.

POWER PLANT.—Monterey, N. L.—A. W. Lillendhal, of Monterey, contemplates the erection of an extensive hydro-electric power plant, to furnish power for manufacturing and all other purposes in the city of Monterey. The concession for the erection of the plant has been granted. The plan contemplates the erection of a power-house of stone, 100 x 150 ft. It is proposed to carry a steel conduit, 5 ft. in diameter, from the head of the Pilon River, in the mountains near the city. This conduit will be laid, horizontally to the point where the powerhouse will be erected, supported by heavy steel posts, and will then drop through a vertical steel pipe to the turbines. A fall of several hundred feet can be obtained. Engineers are now at work perfecting the plans.

The concrete mixer is a rotary horizontal taper cylinder 12 ft. long, within which revolves a shaft fitted with paddles. In the machine for making sand-lime bricks and blocks, the mixture is tamped by impact, the hammer holding the die-punches dropping from a height and falling into the die box.

RAIL WRENCH, CHISELS AND TOOLS.—W. H. Anderson & Sons, 21 to 31 St. Aubin Ave., Detroit, Mich. Paper; two pamphlets; 4¾ × 6½ ins.; pp. 12 and 40; illustrated.

The smaller pamphlet describes a railway track wrench in which a socket bar fits over the nut and is revolved by a hand wheel. The other pamphlet is an illustrated catalogue and price list of chisels and various other hand tools.

DYNAMOS AND MOTORS.—Crocker-Wheeler Co., Ampere, N. J. Paper; 7½ × 10 ins.; serial.

In a 12-p. pamphlet, just issued, direct-current dynamos and motors of Type D, the most recent Crocker-Wheeler design in this class of machines, are described. The range of sizes is 10 to 275 HP. for motors, and 9 to 225 KW. for dynamos. Among the noteworthy features of the design is that spherical bearings are abandoned in favor of the fixed form, as the latter gives more rigid support to the shaft.

EXPANSION BOLTS AND SHIELDS.—W. H. Anderson & Sons, Detroit, Mich. Paper; 6 × 12½ ins.; pp. 4; illustrated.

The bolt, insulator pin or other threaded attachment is screwed into a split sleeve, expanding it so that the diamond points on the outside of the shield engage with the roughened surface of the hole. The device can be used with gimlet-pointed lag screws or wood screws and is adaptable to a variety of purposes. There is also the Omega toggle for attaching fixtures to hollow brick tile, fireproofing, etc. Dimensions and prices are given.

AIR LIFT.—Harris Air Pump Co., 1101 East 23d St., Indianapolis, Ind. Paper; 9½ × 6¼ ins.; pp. 32; illustrated.

The Harris air-lift system is claimed to have the special advantage of being equally adaptable for both shallow and deep wells, while it will force the water to a higher level with less submersion and less volume and pressure of air than other similar devices. A number of testimonials are given and views of plants using this system, including that of the Indianapolis Water Co., which will have 30 Harris air lifts. The device is also shown in use in the Texas oil fields.

MOTOR-DRIVEN AIR COMPRESSORS.—National Electric Co., Milwaukee, Wis. Paper; 7 × 10 ins.; serial.

In Bulletin No. 363 are shown several forms of self-contained motor-driven air compressor sets, including the ordinary form as supplied for air-braked electric cars, a water-jacketed form, and a portable set, comprising a compressor and air-tanks mounted on a small shop truck. The last-named form is recommended for small pneumatic-tool installations. In all sets the compressors are duplex, and their crank-shaft is driven by herring-bone gearing from the motor shaft.

GAS AND GASOLINE ENGINES.—Foos Gas Engine Co., Springfield, O. Paper; 10½ × 8 ins.; pp. 39; illustrated.

These are all horizontal engines on the four-cycle system, of various sizes, and for stationary or portable work. Besides the general description, the several parts are illustrated and described individually. Several views of the company's shops are also given. Separate circulars contain testimonials and describe the efficiency of the counterbalancing; the machine is shown running at full speed, while resting simply upon a pair of steel rollers.

COMPOUND LOCOMOTIVES.—American Locomotive Co., 111 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Paper; 9 × 6 ins.; pp. 36; illustrated.

This description of the Cole four-cylinder compound locomotive represents a piece of catalogue-making of first rank. The pamphlet is, of course, not a catalogue in the ordinary sense, since locomotives are not built as stock machines; but the construction, the service features, and the range of applicability of the Cole arrangement are fully, yet concisely, described by text photographs and drawings. The latter in particular are of unusual excellence.

BULLDOZERS AND FORGING, PUNCHING, SHEARING AND HYDRAULIC MACHINERY.—Williams, White & Co., Moline, Ill. Paper; 6¾ × 9¼ ins.; pp. 171; illustrated.

One of the most useful and labor-saving machines in forge work is the bulldozer, in which the heated bar or plate is pressed to shape between dies operated by arms on a heavy shaft. It is used in locomotive and car shops and in all kinds of machine works, each shop usually devising numerous dies for its own particular work. Machines for light and heavy work are shown, with numerous examples of their product. Another metal-working machine is the Yeakley hammer, in which the hammer is a plunger fitting a vertical chamber, being drawn up a vacuum and driven down by air pressure. Rolling machines for tapering and rolling special shapes are shown, and about 60 pages are devoted to punching and shearing machines of different classes, mainly for heavy work. Other machines noted are riveting, welding and drop hammers, upsetting and forging machines, multiple drills, etc. The catalogue as a whole gives an excellent idea of modern metal-working machinery.

ELECTRIC INSTRUMENTS AND MACHINES.—Fort Wayne Electric Works, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Paper, 8 x 10½ ins. Serial.

A number of new serial bulletins, issued recently, contain up-to-date information about Fort Wayne electric products. Watt-meters (including prepayment instruments), transformers, induction motors, and arc-lighting equipment. A small (5 × 8 in.) pamphlet has also appeared recently, which discusses the question of prepayment watt-meters, giving the arguments for their use; a prepayment Wattmeter and a separate prepayment attachment are among the products of this company's work.

NATIONAL GARBAGE FUEL CO., 112 Clark St., Chicago. Paper; 10 x 6½ ins.; pp. 15; illustrated.

This pamphlet describes an entire process in which the garbage, after being disinfected and passed over a picking table (for the removal of cans, bottles, iron, etc.), is ground to pulp in a mill; this is then mixed with a binding medium and a proportion of crude oil, and then delivered to a briquetting machine, the product from which can be used as fuel. An analysis made at the Armour Institute of Technology shows the briquettes to contain about 92% of volatile combustible matter and 4% fixed carbon.

PUMPING MACHINERY.—The Hill Machine Co., Anderson, Ind. Paper; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 60; illustrated.

Steam pumping engines and pumping heads for deep well work are shown, the pump rod being directly connected to the piston rod of the vertical steam cylinder or operated by a connecting rod from a crank shaft driven by belting or geared to an electric motor. Other forms of pumps are for house or farm supply, boiler feed and other purposes. There is also a ¾-HP. engine run by steam or compressed air, and suitable for driving farm machinery, printing presses, etc. Working barrels and other apparatus for deep well work are also included, and lists of dimensions and prices are given in all cases.

ELECTRICAL APPARATUS.—Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., Pittsburg, Pa. Paper; 7 × 10 ins.; serial.

Recent issues of Westinghouse serial bulletins include an excellent, complete, description of the "catenary" form of high-voltage trolley line construction developed by the company's engineers; a catalogue of a new line of portable measuring instruments, including round-dial voltmeters, ammeters and power-factor meters and series transformers for use with such instruments; also bulletins on arc-lamps, elevator controllers, alternators, a new 200-HP. direct-current railway motor, and other subjects.

A special (non-serial) publication meriting notice is a monograph on Rotary Converters, which seems to have general interest although written with reference primarily to Westinghouse machines. Another booklet of interest is entitled "Westinghouse Railway Apparatus," and forms a descriptive album of standard and multiple-unit railway equipment.

PORTABLE SUBSTATIONS.—General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Paper; 8 x 10½ ins.; serial.

The requirements of modern suburban electric railroading are such as to promise remarkably wide use of portable substations in the future. Many systems are so arranged that very lightly loaded sections may at times have heavy concentrated loads. Instead of designing all substations for their maximum loads, a single portable substation, comprising transformer, converter, switchboard, and connections, mounted in a box-car, may be used to help out the section of momentary heavy load. Such a substation can quickly be run to any point on the line, and is easily connected into circuit. Several such stations have been built by the General Electric Co., and their arrangements is described in Bulletin 4422 (8 pp.). A feature of the equipment is the use of a three-phase transformer instead of three single-phase machines for compactness.

Bulletin 4421 (16 pp.) describes the GE-80 direct current railway motor. The discussion is unusually full, and performance curves and speed tables are added.
